RUMOURS of another impending rebellion in China have been current for the past few days in certain circles in the Colony, and they derive colouring from a case which appeared before His Worship, Mr. F. A.
HAZLELAND, at the Magistrate, when ten Chinese men were charged under the Foreign Enlistment Act, 1870, with fitting out and preparing in this Colony, at divers dates, a military expedition to proceed against a certain friendly State, to wit, the Empire of China. To this accusation the defendants pleaded not guilty, and were formally remanded. So much has already transpired; as to the nature and extent of the suspected movement, speculation and rumour take the place of certainty. Of official denial or confirmation there is none, for, as usual, the authorities are reticent, but their very disinclination to speak on the matter, coupled with the proceedings at the Magistracy and the fact that a body of police nearly forty strong was despatched early yesterday morning toward the frontiers of the New Territory, seems to point clearly to something unusual being afoot. What information we have been able to gather is briefly told.

The stories of this latest disturbance in the political arena of China emanate from native sources, apparently. The Triad Society is said to be the moving spirit, and to have planned that the first blow of the rising should be struck at Canton last night.
Whether or not it actually was delivered it is impossible yet to say, but, in view of the publicity that has been given to the alleged conspiracy and the alertness of the authorities here and, it is to be presumed, at Canton, it is unlikely that serious developments have taken place. Be that as it may, however, recruiting for the rebel ranks appears to have been brisk here and in neighbouring ports, for, again according to native informants, Chinese from Hongkong, from as far down as Singapore, and from Japan, were to flock to the banner of the Triad Society when once its designs had been definitely declared. The reason for all this unrest is said to be enmity against the mandarin class for excessive "squeezing" of the people, inferentially for the payment of the indemnity as well as for their own personal gain. The people, it is said, are tired of the present system of government in China, and are even anxious that the country should be taken over and administered by an European Power or Powers.

All this, as we have said, is rumour, and how far it is to be depended upon we leave our readers to judge. It is certain, however, that affairs are not so tranquil as they appear to be. Some of the men arrested here and now under remand were found in a house at 20, D'Aguilar Street, where uniforms and banners were also discovered.
The police had had information of their whereabouts and schemes, and took them quite by surprise. Not all the occupants of the house were arrested, however, for we believe that several, including the ringleaders, escaped by the back-door as the representatives of the law entered by the front. The arrests were effected on Saturday last, and the same night Mr. E. R.
HALLIDAY, Assistant Superintendent of Police, and Mr. C. CLEMENTI, Assistant Registrar-General, were despatched on a mission to Canton, it is said; the British Consul therefore, it also transpires, was at once advised by cable of the nature of events. Active measures are still being pursued by the authorities, and developments may be expected.

To-day is the Chinese New Year's Day.
Owing to the Chinese holidays the Daily Press will not appear on Friday, the next issue being on Saturday morning. The Weekly Press will be published on Saturday also, in time for the English mail.

There will be a Rugby football practice game on the Happy Valley ground at 4 p.m. to-day.

Chief Inspector J. W. Hearn, of the Bangkok Police, has died in England, where he was in leave for ill-health.

Damage to the extent of $100 was done by a fire which broke out at Shaukiwan early yesterday morning, when a Chinese dwelling-house was destroyed.

We are asked to call attention to the fact that the A.D.C.'s performance of His Excellency the Governor commences at 9.15 to-night, not at 9 o'clock.

The Peking Gazette has an article in favour of white mess-jackets for civilians at dances in the tropics in place of the conventional dress clothes. We should think that the dancer's figure has something to do with the unwilling-ness to adopt the cooler costume.

The Japanese Doctor Yokota, who was stricken with plague while attending upon the patients at Tokyo, unfortunately succumbed to the disease on the night of the 14th inst. On the day of his death the Emperor of Japan bestowed the Order of the Rising Sun upon him with the Sixth Order of Merit. Further, the Tokyo Municipality decided to grant the deceased doctor's family a considerable sum of money as a mark of their appreciation of his services.

When Dr. Pentecost comes to Hongkong, golfers and sic-like cattle (as Burns says) may expect to have a tingling of the ears. In Manila the other day he said that men and women who at home would have been ashamed to break the Sabbath, there patronised "the racecourse, the ball games and the golf grounds.
If we bring to this country, as some of the natives charge we are doing, unbelief, the American Government must register one of the most conspicuous, disgraceful, and disastrous failures in the history of the world."

By kind permission of Col. Iremonger and Officers, the band of the 33rd Burma Infantry will play the following programme of music during dinner at the King Edward Hotel tomorrow, 30th instant, from 7.30 to 9.30 p.m.:— March: "The King's Colonials" ... Evans Overture: "The Bohemian Girl" ... Balfe
Selection: "Florodora" ... Leslie Stuart Polka: "Le Premier Pas" ... Coote
Selection: "San Toy" ... Sydney Jones Valse: "La Navarraise" ... Waldteufel Extra.
Galop: "Rotten Row" ... Keler Bela
"God Save the King."

The first International Congress of Far Eastern Studies at Hanoi proved a great success, and it is very fortunate that Siam was so well represented, the Bangkok Times says. The presidency of the most important section, that of Indo-China, was entrusted to her representative (Col. Gorini), who was also appointed president and member of various important committees.
His position was a somewhat delicate one, but he maintained it with marked success. The greatest courtesy and consideration were shown to all taking part in the Congress, and indeed all who have been to the Exhibition have expressed the highest satisfaction with the kindness and consideration shown to them. The Press representatives specially thanked the Governor-General for the courtesy extended to them day by day.

The Singapore Police authorities have been trying to put an end to the ricksha strike by the forcible method of visiting the coolie warrens with a considerable force of armed constables and turning the pullers out. A large measure of success seems to have been obtained, though the strike was not entirely ended.

Prince Rupert of Bavaria, who is touring round the East with his wife, will make his way to the East via India, the Straits, China, Japan, the Pacific Ocean, America, and thence back to Europe. In India the Prince is no stranger, as he has already visited Bombay, Calcutta, the large inland cities and the Himalaya chain. Professor Dr. Heinrich Mayr, of the University at Munich, a scientific celebrity, will accompany the Prince.

The Russian official naval and military organs were continuing when the last mail left Europe, with ever-increasing emphasis, to impress upon the Imperial Government the vitally urgent necessity of taking timely measures for the preservation of Russia's dominant power and prestige in the Far East. There is no mistaking the object, it is said, of Japan's straining all her financial resources in order to place commissions for the most powerful battleships with American and European builders.
When an European Power adopts a policy of that kind, England immediately puts her productive energies into action, and, pari passu, builds two warships to each one launched by her Continental neighbour. That is the example which this country must now emulate if it wishes to prevent a total eclipse of its maritime power in the Far East. The Service journals warningly press the absolute necessity, at whatever cost or sacrifice to the national treasury, of creating a Pacific fleet, which shall at least be able to hold its own against that of Japan, and prevent the latter Power from establishing a naval supremacy in the Far East.

The death occurred on the 28th ult. at Fortrose, Ross-shire, of Lieutenant-General John MacKenzie Macintyre, late Royal Artillery.
He was born in 1827, the son of the late Mr.
Donald Macintyre, of Calcutta, and entered the Madras Army in 1845. With the local rank of captain he was attached to the Ottoman Army in 1855-56, and joined the Kertch expedition as a brigade-major. He accompanied the army of Omer Pasha to Asia Minor, and took part in the winter campaign there, being appointed Aide-de-Camp to the British Commissioner, Sir Linton Simmons, and serving in that capacity until April, 1856. In 1858 he was promoted to the rank of captain, and in 1860 accompanied the expedition to China in command of a mountain train battery. He was present at the defence of Shanghai when attacked by the rebel army in August, 1860. A shell from a mountain train howitzer laid by him wounded Chung Wong, who was in command of the rebels, and killed and wounded several of his staff. In 1870 he was gazetted lieutenant-colonel, and received promotion to the rank of colonel five years later, and to that of major-general in 1878.
He retired from the Army with the rank of Lieutenant-general in 1882.

Mr. Matthew Little, of Lyndhurst Gardens, London, and John Little and Co., Limited, 9 and 10, Pancras Lane, formerly of Singapore, who died on the 7th November last, aged seventy-five years, nominated in his will, dated May 19, 1900, as his executors Mr. William Henry Dalgleish, of 8, Great Winchester Street, and Mr. Alan M'Nab Taylor, of 34, Great St.
Helens, power being reserved to grant probate also to his widow, Mrs. Harriet Agnes Little, and his son, Mr. Robert Little, and the testator bequeathed to the executors £100 each, and to his son Robert 25 shares of £50 each in John Little and Co., Limited, and to his daughters, Anne Maxwell Little, Harriet Agnes Little, Miriam Little, and Hilma Little, and to his son Harry Martin Little £2,000 each, and he bequeathed to Mrs. Little his house in Lyndhurst Gardens and its furniture, and the income during her widowhood of 366 shares of £100 each in the Tanjong Pagar Dock Company, which, subject to her interest, he bequeathed to his son Harry Martin, and he left the residue of his property in trust to pay the income thereof to Mrs. Little during her widowhood, subject to her interest in trust for his children, excepting his said son Robert, who is otherwise provided for. Mr. Little's estate has been valued at £39,869 gross, and £39,655 net.

The Naval and Military Record of the 25th ult. has the following paragraph:—While some doubt seems to exist at Lyngbyport as to whether Admiral Sir E. H. Seymour will succeed Lord Charles Scott at Mount Wise, no uncertainty prevails elsewhere. It is easy to reach the point of selection by the process of exhaustion.
Should Admiral Sir R. H. More-Molyneux get the appointment he could only hold it until the following August, while Admiral Sir N.
Bowden-Smith will have to retire for age next month. This leaves Lord Walter Ke., the senior available admiral, and he is, scarcely likely to move from Whitehall to Mount Wise for a period of 18 months. This leaves Admiral Sir E. H. Seymour, who is said to have a strong personal desire to take over the command, the senior eligible admiral; and in consideration of his eminent services it may be assumed that his own wishes will be respected. Even then he can only hold the appointment for two years, as in April, 1905, he must retire for age. Should some unforeseen accident occur to prevent Sir E. H. Seymour accepting the Devonport command in March, it is very doubtful if he will be offered Portsmouth in the following October, as the appointment has been offered to and accepted by Admiral Sir H. F. Stephenson. His rejection of Devonport will, therefore, practically close Sir E. H.
Seymour's active service career, a finale which the gallant admiral has no intention to precipitate.

Yo Yung-yik, about whom we have heard so much from Corea and Northern sources generally of late, has returned to Seoul from Port Arthur on a Russian warship.

The Oxford University Athletics on the 7th inst. gained a decisive victory by 6 wickets in their match v. the Gentlemen of India at Delhi, scoring 135 and 129 (4 wickets), against 118 and 143. It should be mentioned that Trop, one of the Indian Gentlemen's best bats, retired hurt for 5 runs in the first innings and could not bat at all in the second.

The Messageries Maritimes Co. has followed the example of the P. & O. S. N. Co. and revised its fares for passengers to India. The Times of India remarks:—One matter in this connection is significant. The Messageries' new schedule appears some time after that of the P. & O. Company, and differs in several important respects from it. This confirms the circumstantial rumours that have been circulated to the effect that the Conference governing this branch of the Eastern shipping trade no longer exists.

I lent M. A. Colana, of the Spanish navy, has published two lectures delivered by him in Madrid. The first lecture deals with the various types of battleships, and the lecturer expresses the opinion expressed elsewhere that the Italian battleship Vittorio Emanuele is the best type among existing battleships. In the second lecture is discussed the naval position in the Mediterranean of the various Powers, and which Power, from that point of view, would form the best ally for Spain. The lecturer gives strong reasons in favour of an alliance with England.

The Batavia Nieuwsblad, in reviewing the course of trade there in 1902, says that, during that period, the import houses suffered heavily by failures among Arab and Chinese traders.
The usual cry arose for a limit to the credit system which had brought on such disaster, but nothing came of the numerous suggestions to that end. Export articles fetched lower prices, with the result that less money came into circulation among the cultivating classes. For-instance, the price fetched by the sugar crop in Java, last year, was twenty millions of guilders below the amount realised by the crop of 1901.
Gambling in mining shares caused immense losses. Many bubble companies went down.
The close of the year found the mining outlook more encouraging. The companies which stood the storm have promising prospects, and are likely to justify expectations by showing tangible results.

A change of name is probable in the case of the Protestant Episcopal Church in America.
Some of the results of the discussions in the conventions are given by the American correspondent of the Church Times. In the diocese of Albany, although the Bishop himself is opposed to any change of title, the convention passed a resolution in favour of an alteration, but without making any suggestion for a new name. Michigan Convention voted against any change, but the convention of Michigan City took the opposite view, and added the suggestion that the new name should be "The American Catholic Church." Similar resolutions were carried in two other dioceses—those of Springfield and Milwaukee. New Hampshire has also decided in favour of a new title, so that up to the present a majority of dioceses have declared in favour of abandoning the title "Protestant Episcopal."

The following appreciation of the Chinese Regiment is from a London evening paper:— One has heard many unkind things about the regiment by people who know nothing about the men. As a matter of fact, the Chinese soldier has many sterling qualities. He is very amenable to the discipline and control of those he knows. He is stout, and well able to stand fatigue and hard work. He is a very good shot, taken all round. He is no trouble to feed, as he has no prejudices on the subject; except it be in the matter of quantity. He is good on service, as we know from his services during the hard fighting in Northern China two years ago, and he is equally good when employed on duties of a more peaceful and less exciting nature.
The regiment was then in its extreme infancy, fighting under alien officers, and for an alien cause, against its own compatriots, its own Emperor and his Imperial troops, yet it bore its part with the best and proved itself trustworthy.

HONGKONG GENERAL CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

At a monthly meeting of the Committee of the Hongkong General Chamber of Commerce, held in the Chamber Room, City Hall, on Tuesday, 20th January, at 3.45 p.m. Present:— Hon. C. S. Sharp (Chairman), Mr.
W. Potts (Vice-Chairman), Hon. C. W. Dickson, Messrs. C. Michelson, N. A. Sles, J. R.
M. Smith, R. Chatterton Wilcox, Hon. R.
Sheehan (ex-officio), and A. R. Lowe (Secretary).

The minutes of the monthly meeting of the Committee held on the 16th December and also of the special meeting of the Committee held on 23rd ultimo were read and confirmed.

QUESTION OF DATING AND SIGNING BILLS OF LADING.

Read letter received from Melbourne Chamber of Commerce inquiring the practice at Hongkong of signing bills of lading for goods prior to shipment and stating that there was a proposal before them to introduce legislation to suppress the practice.

This matter was discussed and the CHAIRMAN stated that in 1897 the General Produce Brokers' Association of London addressed the Hongkong Chamber in similar terms and a reply was sent that the Committee felt unable to take any active steps to secure any alteration of the system as carried on here, and at other ports in the East. It was eventually decided to reply that there is no regular practice in vogue here of signing bills of lading for goods prior to shipment, but that in cases of urgency or necessity bills of lading are so signed under proper guarantees.

THE CURRENCY QUESTION.

The CHAIRMAN said that a reprint of the minutes of the special Committee meeting of the 23rd ultimo dealing with this question had been sent to each member of the Chamber and he thought that, as the members had neither requisitioned a special general meeting nor made any representations on the subject, the Committee might fairly take it the members endorsed their views.

EMBELLISHMENT BY THE CLERK.

The SECRETARY reported that, in accordance with the decision of the Committee at their last meeting, he had given the clerk, Mr. M. H.
Baptista, into custody on the charge of embezzling the funds of the Chamber. The case was remanded to the 2nd instant, and on the prisoner pleading guilty the Magistrate had sentenced him to six months imprisonment with hard labour.

A COLONIAL OFFICER.

Colonel Sam Steele led Lord Strathcona's Canadian Horse in the late war. Though probably half the stories told about him are inventions or exaggerations, his name is still a household word among Colonials in South Africa. One day a British officer complained to Steele that he met troopers of the Strathcona Horse who did not salute him. "Why, confound them," was the answer, "they won't even salute me!" It is acknowledged that Sam Steele knew his men thoroughly and got an immense deal of good work out of them.
Still, incidents like the following do not make for military discipline. They are attested by a Toronto man lately back from South Africa:
"They say General Buller was annoyed at him, but soon got over it. Steele, in his shirt sleeves and smoking his famous short clay pipe, would sit at the door of his tent when Buller and his Staff came riding past. The first time this happened everybody was petrified except Col.
Steele, who was quite at his ease. 'Well,' General, he said, 'anything doing to-day?' General Buller politely stated that nothing special was being done. 'Well,' said Col.
Steele, 'I think you should send a bunch of the boys off to the right there. The blunkey-blank Boers are fiddling round over there all right enough.' It was Colonel Sam Steele, too, who, being invited by Lord Milner to Government House at Capetown, declined the invitation on the ground that 'things of that kind weren't in his line.'"

U.S. BANK AND TRUST PROSPERITY.

London, 2nd January.
Owing to their having experienced an exceptionally prosperous year the New York banks are dividing £1,000,000 among their employees. Mr. J. P. Morgan's staff will receive £200,000. Apart from the profits which he made in his banking transactions, Mr. Morgan is said to have gained £6,000,000 upon his year's business, and Mr. J. D. Rockefeller much more. The Steel Trust is offering its 161,000 employees great facilities to acquire shares in the concern. The directors of the trust have also decided to divide all the year's profits over and above £16,000,000 among their employees.

The Times New York correspondent discusses the causes of Baron von Holleben's retirement, and says he was set the impossible task of fostering friendship between Germany and America, and simultaneously estranging England and America.
Influential American opinion attributes the recall of the German Ambassador to the Kaiser's chagrin at the effect of his own mistakes.

THE DELHI DUREAN.

London, 12th January.
The Daily Telegraph prints an article on the Durbar, and discusses the reasons for the willingness and pride with which so many princes assembled to acknowledge the sovereignty of the King-Emperor. The article remarks that no bond is so strong as willing service. The whole of the Durbar is eloquent of the simple fact that we honestly try to rule India for India's good. If Lord Curzon has brought that home to us by the pomp and circumstance of a unique occasion, he has fully justified his Vicereignty, for the sense of responsibility towards the people whose destinies are placed in our hands is the secret of the success of British rule.

SOMALILAND.

London, 12th January.
Two hundred and forty copper tanks, inside with tin, adapted for conveyance on the backs of animals, are being sent to Somaliland for the use of the expedition. A skirmish took place between our scouts and those of the Mahdists on the 7th instant, fifteen miles south of Bechale. Four of our prisoners report that the Mahdists sent two columns to attack the friendly tribes. A third column remains in the vicinity to prevent the Bechale Garrison from assisting the friendly tribes.

SYNDICAT DU YUNNAN, LD.

The second annual general meeting of the Syndicat du Yunnan, Limited, was held at Cannon Street Hotel, London, E.C., on the 22nd ult. Mr. ACHILLE ADAM, president, and in the course of his remarks said:—The cost of the concession, £20,844, was the total of the expenditure incurred in connection with the concession in the province of Yunnan. They had absolutely no contingent liabilities in connection with the obtaining of this concession other than those due to their own European agents, whose remuneration was to a certain extent payable by results. Expenditure on current and lapsed ventures, £6,544, comprised an item of expense incurred in connection with the despatch of Mr. W. M. Raymond, an engineer, to inspect and report upon certain properties in the province of Szechuen. Mr. Raymond's report, however, was such that they were unable to further entertain them, and they would be eventually obliged to write off expense. The item also includes purchase of an electric lighting concession at Peking, for which they were negotiating. They would recollect the information given at an extraordinary meeting at the end of September last. The situation then explained existed to-day, with one notable exception, the Antonin Nigou to Yunnan. The expedition left Marseilles at the beginning of November, and a cable from Hanoi, 4th inst., announced they had safely reached that port. He went on to speak of Mr. Emile Bocher's report to the Board, which was a very lengthy one. Mr. Bocher was an authority, without a rival, in all matters connected with the Province of Yunnan, and was the author of the standard work on that province. The extract published with the report contained a list of the mineral deposits which have been or are being worked in the areas allocated to them; but it must be remembered that numerous coal, iron and other deposits situate on the route of the railway now being constructed were not enumerated in this list. The tin deposit at Koutson was especially important. You will see Mr. Emile Bocher states that it covers an area of more than 30 kilometres (50 miles), on which are more than 60 mines; and, further, that 35,000 men are engaged in mining in the district. He could say the conditions of their contract were of an entirely favourable and elastic character, and compare altogether to our advantage with the conditions of other concessions which have been obtained in China. Mr. Leclerc, a well-known mining engineer in the employ of the French Government, states that Yunnan Province is exceptionally rich in mineral deposits, that they consist particularly of coal, copper, and tin. Coal, we are told, exists practically everywhere, and with regard to copper, he confirms what Mr. Bocher stated was the former production, namely 6,000 tons, and adds the present output may be taken to be 1,500 tons. The (Chinese, it appears, have mined the ground in a general way so far as their primitive methods permit, but the truly exceptional nature of the deposits, and their size, as well as their resemblance to the deposits in America, pointed to the fact that Yunnan gives promise of becoming one of the most important copper producing centres of the world. He thought the testimony of Mr. Leclerc and of Captain Ryder, of Baron von Richthofen, and, finally, of Mr. Bocher, eliminated all element of doubt that the Province of Yunnan offers an exceptional field for mining enterprise. Their work would be greatly facilitated by the railway which is now being constructed under the guarantee of the French Government from Tonkin to Yunnanfu. That line, from the moment it enters Chinese territory to the time it reaches its terminus at Yunnanfu, runs through the very centre of their districts. They would be interested to hear that some weeks ago he was approached in Paris by a director of the company constructing this railway on the question of the coal supply which they will need. He moved that the directors' report and accounts to September 30 be received and adopted. Mr. H. E. M. Bourke seconded the proposition, which was carried unanimously.

GUNNERY V. PAINT.

Mr. Arnold White writes as follows:—
My only complaint against Capt. Crofton is that while undertaking to "reply" to my statements of fact he has inadvertently omitted to do so.

1. Capt. Crofton implies, but does not assert, that I am in error in stating that British men-of-war miss the target more often than twice out of three rounds, but he naively admits that he has not the return of the prize-firing to consult. The following return is extracted from the Admiralty figures. The average is about two misses to one hit:— 1901.

Warships...	10-6in. 54 14 flagships
Torpedo-boats...	8-4in. 49 15
Orlando...	10-6in. 60 16
Empress of India...	10-6in. 67 19
Archer...	8-4in. 31 1
Gibraltar...	10-6in. 75 16 flagships
Hyalanth...	11-6in. 78 9
Magnificent...	12-6in. 105 21 flagships
Galatea...	10-6in. 53 5

The average of the percentages of 1898, 1899, 1900, and 1901 amounts as nearly as possible to missing twice out of three rounds. It is true that, taking the year 1901 by itself, a slightly higher percentage than 33.3 is arrived at, but the statement Capt. Crofton challenges by innuendo is absolutely sustained by the figures. The real fact is that the shooting of individual ships is improving, but the shooting of the whole fleet is very much what it was four years ago. There has been little recent change in the average figure of demerit in the whole fleet.

2. Capt. Crofton suggests that I have confused the forms of target used at the prize-firing exercises and at the monthly target practices respectively. I have done nothing of the kind. I never compared the prize-firing target with the ordinary target. One is 17ft. by 20ft., the other 5ft. by 12ft. Does Capt. Crofton think it easier to hit the smaller target than the bigger? If not what force is there in his suggestion that confusion has taken place in my mind between the monthly and prize-firing targets?

3. When Capt. Crofton undertakes to give the dimensions of the prize-firing target, is he not himself in error? I ask as a mere civilian. Simple arithmetic and accuracy are not monopolies of retired naval captains. I am informed on good authority that my critic is in error.

4. Capt. Crofton states that the prize-firing target, when placed in position, is passed by the ship along a course generally marked by buoys. Here, again, Capt. Crofton is surely in error. Is not the course always marked by buoys? Perhaps some gunnery expert with recent experience will decide between us.

5. Capt. Crofton states that the distance is given for the first round, afterwards it has to be judged by the captain of the gun, altering continuously as the ship proceeds. The real fact is that the alteration in distance is not much. Certainly not more than 200 yards.

6. The instructions says that this test of accurate and rapid shooting is not to establish a comparison between different ships of the fleet; and therefore, when Capt. Crofton alleges that this system of comparison is impracticable on account of the difference in weather, light, force of wind, and the motion of the ship, he is flitting against fiction of his own creation. Still, the test in question is accurate enough to enable a landsman to make a fair comparison between the shooting of the Ocean and the shooting of the Empress of India. The shooting of the Ocean, for 1902, was, with twelve 6in. guns, 193 rounds, 117 hits, which was 7 rounds per gun and 4.8 hits per minute. The Empress of India fired 69 rounds with 11 hits—five misses to one hit. An officer is always in the sighting position, and is termed "Spotter." The gun's crew is never left to itself. An officer must be present, and always is present.

7. When Captain Crofton attempts to refute the charges of bad shooting on the ground "that only actual hits are counted, and a hair's-breadth miss is a lost shot," the answer is simple. We are talking of relative shooting; that is, shooting as carried out, by the majority of ships—not shooting as it ought to be. No wind or weather, no accidents of climate or local circumstances can account for the difference between the shooting of the Ocean and the shooting of the Empress of India quoted above. The Secretary of the Admiralty attempts to account for the bad shooting of the Empress of India by saying that she has only recently left the Dockyard; but the Bulwark the flagship in the Mediterranean, had also recently left the Dockyard, and on this ship we observe efficiency to exist. Landsmen, therefore, are reduced to the conclusion that the directing ability on board the Bulwark is more efficient than the directing ability that controls the shooting arrangements of the Empress of India.

8. Captain Crofton gives himself away in stating that 36.3 per cent. of actual hits is creditable on the ground that at least 80 per cent. of the rounds fired by our ships at the prize-firing target would have struck a modern battleship. Why is two misses out of every three rounds creditable when we have seven or eight ships that can depend on getting nearly 70 per cent. of hits? The target for British naval guns in war will not always be a battleship broadside on. The accuracy of the good shooting ship will enable her to destroy a casemate, a coasting tower, or a bridge—where the vulnerable points of an enemy's ship are to be found. This is the real answer to Captain Crofton. It is not enough to fire "into the brown."

9. Captain Crofton says, "But it may be asked why should some ships make so much better practice than others?" and then proceeds to quote the Terrible's percentage of 79.6. The answer is simple. It is a known fact that some captains take the trouble to teach their men on scientific principles the art of straight shooting. Other captains do not take that trouble. How can similar results be obtained from two systems, under one of which great attention is given to straight shooting, and in the other none? What we want to know is why what Captain Percy Scott, late of the Terrible, and other captains have done, and are doing, has not been done before, and we want to make certain that steps are being taken to remedy the accumulated defects of many years' standing.

10. Captain Crofton says that some ships have a steadier gun-platform, have been longer in commission, have more practised gun's crews, and he adduces other reasons why one ship shoots better than another. Facts contradict Captain Crofton at every point. Where was the steadiness of the platform in the Scylla? And yet the Scylla and the Terrible made practically the same scores in successive years. If the question of the length of the commission be taken into account, what about the Bulwark that has just come out top in the Mediterranean, beating the Renown, the previous flagship, which has been three years in commission. The answer is obvious. The Bulwark's captain and officers made a speciality of straight shooting. The Renown's did not apparently do so.

11. Captain Crofton says that "the late captain of the Terrible is well known to the public as one of the most expert captains in the Navy, and he certainly appears to have been more successful than others in training his gun's crews to shoot." Here we agree. It is the personal equation that is the true solution of the problem. Captain Percy Scott, however, is by no means the only good captain in His Majesty's Navy. He is "not the only pebble on the beach." Other captains are showing that they can train their men as well, or even better, than Captain Scott, and if these why not others? And if now, why not earlier? The admiral's ship is generally one of the worst shooting ships in a fleet.

12. Captain Crofton says, "We cannot all reach the same level of excellence in any walk of life," and adduces this as a reason for not trying to shoot better. I demur. If his argument means anything it means that the absence of proficiency in straight shooting is to be condoned, is to be left to the sweet will of captains. This condonation of demerit, or low standard of merit, is the curse of our public service. In a cricket eleven a certain minimum of proficiency is required, and the argument that "we cannot all reach the same level of excellence in any walk of life" would not carry the admission of any inefficient cricketer into any first-class eleven. Since war is more serious than cricket the rule should be more rigidly enforced in the Navy than at Lords'.

13. As the question of throwing ammunition overboard is referred to the editor of the National Review, I have no comment to make on the award, which is in my favour.

14. As I agree with Captain Crofton in his earlier remarks on the subject of paint, there is no comment to be made when he says that the cleanliness of a ship should not in any way interfere with her progress in gunnery.

15. But when he goes on to say that "the general experience is that a well-kept ship will also be the smartest all round at all kinds of drill," the facts are against him. Flagships are notoriously the smartest in appearance and the quickest in evolutions, but the contrast between the flagships and their shooting returns—is it not written in the Book of the Chronicles of the Lords of the Admiralty?

16. Captain Crofton inadvertently gives himself away by quoting the case of the admiral's ship, which came into contact with wet paint, and whose ship got a bad inspection report. Could there be a more complete justification of my contention that ships are praised or blamed for their manipulation of paint, not for their proficiency in gunnery?

7. Captain Crofton states that the majority of officers promoted have either been gunnery or torpedo lieutenants. No officer up to two years ago could be promoted for straight shooting, because no ship did shoot straight. When the Scylla and the Terrible shot the fashion, it was such an unprecedented event that few officers in the Navy believed in the accuracy of the figures.

18. Captain Crofton scarcely adheres to the accepted rules of controversy in his remarks about the Astræa. I have discussed the matter of straight shooting with a very large number of naval officers, and I do not think in any of my writings on naval matters many mistakes in fact have hitherto been pointed out, nor has anyone succeeded in fastening on me a charge of improper conduct. With regard to the Astræa's report, which Captain Crofton considers was obtained in an "unauthorised" manner and as having been printed without the permission of the captain of the ship, all I can say is that a book, entitled "The Log of H.M.S. Astræa on the Mediterranean and China Stations," by T.H. Akers, Q.S.—London: The Westminster Press (Gerrards, Limited), 411A, Harrow Road, W.—was sent me. I concluded when I received it that it was a book for review. Such books constantly reach me. It is, therefore, objectionable to suggest that I have been guilty of the crime of publishing a private document. In order to test the question whether there was anything private, I sent to the publishers for another copy, which I received by return of post. The publishers tell me they are now sold out. It is not the first time that I have been charged with a similar offence. The last occasion was when the Times accused me of publishing a private letter. Hitherto such statements have been followed by abject public apologies. Perhaps Captain Crofton will follow the example of the editor of the Times.

On the subject of the admiral's inspection of the Astræa, I should like to state that as I understand the matter an inspection is considered by all officers on board His Majesty's ships to be the all important event of the year, by which the captain and the commander stand or fall. An unfavourable inspection—that is, paintwork not being clean—has often marred the career of a clever scientific naval officer. After an inspection the general custom of the service is that the admiral should either do something or say something. If he has had a bad inspection he says nothing, but takes action. The ship is sent to sea or punished in some form or other. If a good inspection has taken place the admiral, as a rule, expresses himself favourably, either verbally or in writing. Sir Cyprian Bridge sent a written memorandum with the expression of his opinion. If the expression of the admiral's opinion is a bad one, the captain generally pockets it. If it be a good one he communicates it to the ship's company or puts it on the notice board. If it is placed on the notice board it is, practically a publication, as in the case of the Astræa. Captain Crofton has been a long time absent from a regular man-of-war, but in his youth he must have known the traditions and customs of the Navy.

The remainder of Captain Crofton's "reply" is nothing but the expression of his opinion on matters in regard to which he can claim no special authority. He thinks that the Admiralty method of snubbing the father of the late W. Grounds, the best shot in the fleet, was justified. I think it was cruel and unfeeling. We must agree to differ. It is a question of taste. On matters of taste I decline to yield to Captain Crofton.

My critic "has no means of proving" that the shooting of foreign fleets is not so good as our own. That being so, what is the value of his opinion? But even so, surely the British Navy should be made to shoot efficiently, whatever our German, French, and Russian friends may or may not do.

To paraphrase my critic, may I add that although only an undistinguished private citizen, I "have felt very keenly the slur on the nation" to which I belong, contained in the facts set forth by my critic; and that the statement of fact set forth required a reply. This is not forthcoming, and, as in the case of the "Message from the Mediterranean," which was denied with equal heat, I venture to predict that no real "reply" will be forthcoming, because the facts contained in it are true; and the Admiralty know them to be true, or they would not have left Captain Crofton to the fate he has experienced in being obliged to send a donation to the Sailors' and Soldiers' Institute at Gibraltar, as I now request him to do in the terms of his challenge.

THE RUSSIAN PRESS
CENSORSHIP.

The Russian Press celebrate this month the 200th anniversary of the publication of the first Russian newspaper, the official Vedomosti, founded by Peter the Great. Various proposals have been made for the worthy commemoration of that interesting event, and considerable feeling has been aroused in journalistic circles by the discussion of the different suggestions. It cannot be said that the general public has so far taken a very keen interest in the discussion, nor is the reason for this indifference very far to seek. The fatigue in which the Russian Press is kept completely prevents it from fulfilling its natural function as the guide and reflection of public opinion, and no one not immediately connected with newspaper work can be expected to take any lively interest in its annals.
That Russian journalists are themselves acutely conscious of their humiliating position is shown by a striking article in the Novoe Vremya last month on "How Should the Jubilee of the Press be Celebrated?" The writer discusses some of the schemes which have been suggested, such as the foundation of a journalists' benevolent society or an orphan fund, the publication of a complete history of the Russian Press, &c., and says:—"All that is very well in its way . . . but it is not the main thing, not the one thing which is absolutely necessary." That one thing, he maintains, is the revision of the Press laws, which are not only out of date but have been completely changed in character by later "temporary measures." He traces the events which led to the Press law of 1865, at that time an important step in advance, and quotes utterances of Prince Gortchakoff and Katoch, the famous editor of the Moscow Vedomosti, in favour of the complete freedom of the Press. The following speech of the Imperial Chancellor was made in the Council of State when the Press law was under consideration:—

"My liberal ideas have long been known to all.
I have supported every project tending towards the development of freedom of thought. But, gentlemen, I warn you—and my long experience gives me the right to do so—that this freedom of thought for which you are now struggling will be used against yourselves. You declare that this freedom is a real necessity for the State in order to put an end to abuses and to bring about practical solutions of many economic and social questions. Entirely share your views.
But how will you define those limits which the organs of the Press are not to exceed in their discussion? How will you defend yourselves against newspaper attacks and criticisms? Will you be content to bear the burden of these attacks without seeking to defend yourselves or to punish the newspapers for making them? For everything depends on that. If you and your successors will patiently endure opposition and criticism and attacks upon your conduct as ministers, then give your support to this measure, for in that case it will be of the very greatest benefit to the country. But if you are disposed only to confer the freedom in question so long as it is convenient to you, and to withdraw it as soon as it is directed against yourselves, then it is better that you should not accept the law, for it will only cause you enormous difficulties; in a few months you will deal with it in such a manner that not a vestige will remain of the freedom it confers. As for myself, I give my binding promise that in questions concerning my Ministry (Foreign Affairs) I will neither employ nor tolerate the employment of any of the punishments provided in the law."

The writer in the Novoe Vremya points out that both Prince Gortchakoff and his successors have faithfully kept the promise which was made on that occasion; the Foreign Office has never interfered with the Press. But the prediction of the Imperial Chancellor has proved only too true with regard to the other Ministries. The freedom of the Press, instead of being developed along the lines of the law of 1865, has been systematically restricted by means of Ministerial circulars and supplementary orders. The writer compares the situation of the Russian Press with that of the Bulgarian, which by a curious irony owes its freedom to the Russian Government, and makes an eloquent appeal for the removal of the galling restrictions on Russian newspapers as the best and most worthy means of celebrating the approaching anniversary.
What those restrictions are may be explained in a few words. Russian newspapers are divided into two classes—censored and uncensored.
The former, comprising nearly all the provincial organs, are not allowed to publish anything without first obtaining the consent of the local censor; the latter are not subject to this "preventive censorship," but are under the complete control of the Minister of the Interior, who can punish them in any way he thinks fit and even suppress them altogether if they publish anything to which he takes exception.
The present Minister, M. de Plehve, seems to allow the Press a somewhat greater liberty of action than was tolerated by his predecessor.

But that is saying very little; the circular which he issued only a few months ago shows very plainly within what narrow limits he keeps the "uncensored" newspapers, and it is impossible to read the Official Messages without being struck by the frequency with which he makes use of his powers of punishment. While this article was being written it was announced that the sale of the Exchange Gazette was forbidden except to permanent subscribers. No reason was given for this punishment or any term set to the time during which it is to remain in effect.
Yet the Exchange Gazette is one of the most harmless of newspapers, and, indeed, is so subservient that foreign writers are frequently led into the mistake of regarding it as the "inspired" or semi-official organ of one or other of the Ministers.

TRAVELS IN MONGOLIA.

Before the members of the Central Asian Society, at their rooms in Albemarle Street, London, Captain F. G. Poole, D.S.O., on the 17th ult. read a paper entitled "Outside the Great Wall of China." At the siege of Peking Captain Poole was in command of the International Volunteers, subsequently joining the Allied forces, with whom he served as a staff officer. As these expeditions were since the war, he met with the greatest defence everywhere, and was overwhelmed with offers of guards and escorts.

While out hunting with some hospitable Belgian missionary fathers he had the good luck to come across the "Living Buddha," from Lhasa, on a journey of inspection among the lamaseries. His Holiness was in a large and highly coloured tent, gay on the outside with glaring devil's heads, and had a large number of lamas with him—bestial, sensual-looking men, in flowing red and yellow robes. He gave an interview to Captain Poole, who was the first foreigner he had ever seen. He was a pleasant, rather effeminate-looking man of 30, with large brown eyes and prominent ears. Captain Poole was well treated by the nomad Mongols outside the wall, who are gradually being cramped in as the industrious Chinese bring more and more of their land under cultivation.
They are a friendly, dirty, lazy people, and treat strangers with barbaric hospitality.

The lecture was illustrated by a number of lantern slides, collected by the traveller, depicting the Great Wall from various standpoints, together with several so-called roads leading to and from the remarkable wall.
Other views showed camels bearing the natives wine slung over their backs, the entrance to the Forbidden City, historic gateways outside the Great Wall, triumphal arches beautifully carved, the fine temple which was destroyed by the Boxers, mountainous and river scenery, frontiersmen examining traders' goods for the purpose of levying tax, domestic pursuits, and missionary work.

Sir Evan James, who presided, gave some interesting reminiscences of his own journey in Mongolia, which he made with Major Younghusband and Mr. F. E. Fulford.

THE STOMACH MAKES THE MAN.

A competent stomach means vigour, vitality, health, for by digestion alone can food be transformed into blood, brain, muscle, wasted tissues repaired, decay arrested and life sustained. Imperfect digestion, upsets the whole economy of life. It makes good food poison, breeds drowsiness, hobbles rheumatics, nerve racking pains. Seigel's Syrup ensures digestion, dispels disease, produces health. Backed by 34 years' unbroken success in 16 countries.

SEIGEL'S SYRUP

"Two years ago I contracted indigestion and had it pretty badly," says Mr. Geo. Matthews, 23, Bourke St., Sydney, N.S.W. "I suffered from severe pains in the stomach, sleeplessness and vomiting. I lost flesh and strength rapidly and could not work nearly so well as previously. My wife induced me to try Seigel's Syrup. The first bottle relieved me wonderfully and before the second was emptied I was quite cured and as 'right as rain.' July 1st, 1902."
